

Media Release - 29 May 2003

<< back >>

Game Ranger kills leopard in Kruger Park

Mr. Joseph Mathebula (52) a Game Ranger in the Kruger National Park survived an attack from a leopard, and killed the beast with an axe in the process of defending himself.

Mr. Mathebula was busy inspecting some game for foot and mouth disease, when the leopard attacked him and attempted to grab his head and hand simultaneously. Mr. Mathebula, talking from his hospital bed was still astounded at the power he had to kill the animal, and was very thankful for the fact that he had an axe with him.

Beeld, P1

Christa Strydom

Editor: Kiewiet

SANParks

Tel: 012 426 5019

Fax: 012 343 0153

E-mail: christas@parks-sa.co.za